Description:

What I learned about DevOps at DOES15

DevOps Enterprise is the leading conference focusing on DevOps in the enterprise, i.e. DevOps in the real world of legacy "horses" as compared to aspirational "unicorns". Rob is returning from the conference in San Francisco on 24th October. He will be summarising for us what he learned there about introducing DevOps to the enterprise, and how to mix nimble lifecycles like DevOps with other conservative approaches.

Presenter:

Rob England - The IT Skeptic

Biography:

Rob England is a self-employed IT commentator and consultant. He consults in New Zealand on IT governance, strategy and processes. Internationally, he is best known for his blog The IT Skeptic and half a dozen books on IT, and he speaks widely at conferences and online. Rob was the NZ IT Service Management Champion for 2010 and he is NZ's only certified trainer for the DevOps Institute.
